Iggy and the Stooges. Black Rebel Motorcycle Club. Andrew Bird. Gogol Bordello. And KT Tunstall. To name a few. Wonder if I know somebody who knows somebody who handles VIP passes for this suckah?

Hel-loo, Gumdrops. Why d'ya think I'm cruising for VIP tickets? We'll be able to dodge the crowds, sit in the comfy chairs, and always have good sightlines.

(And I'm warning you right now, if I manage to finagle us backstage and you stare fixedly at KT Tunstall's cleavage, I will cause an embarrassing accident involving spaghetti sauce and your shirt. And I'll tell everyone you're a high school algebra teacher and the faculty advisor for the AV club.)

Push your wheelchair? I see you in a souped-up power racing wheelchair, like Paul Newman in Mel Brooks' Silent Movie. Make sure you get some cool stickers for the crash helmet!

Virgin has always been good about spending money on fun stuff, as Richard Branson likes having fun. We even had a chef (as in a real chef, not ashort order cook) on site when I worked with Virgin Interactive, because good food is important. (nom nom nom)

Not much, unless you were =really= into electronica in the late nineties (this is the first sign of them I've seen since before I left DC), or mildly into the Florida dance/rave scene. Their live shows are legendarily crazy: pyrotechnics, lights, chainsaws, plate armor, kabuki, like a psychedelic techno Cirque du Soleil show or something.

They do great dub.

Mmmm... Iggy...

I've also heard a bit of Gogol Bordello. (An All Songs Considered show recorded at the 9:30 club. I wonder if you guys were in the crowd.)

I'm not familiar with the other folks on the bill. It sounds like a great show, though.
